Rachel Bradley is a graduate student in the GGD field. Before arriving at Cornell in 2021, she studied molecular genetics at the University of Toronto. She will be joining team CNTD1 and her research will focus on exploring the spatial and temporal modulation of crossover formation and distribution.